TWO GUESTS OF McCORMICKS DIE RESULT OF FIRE

Their Country Home In England Destroyed by Flames Today

Whitchurch, Hampshire, England, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Two house guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. McCormick, of the prominent Chicago family, were killed by a fire which destroyed the McCormick country home early today.

The dead are the Duke De La Tremouille, French Cavalry officer, and Capt. J. H. B. Rodney of London, the husband of the former Frances Strickland Lovell, daughter of R. Poldham of Seattle, Washington.

Mrs. Rodney was injured by a 20-foot jump to escape the flames. At the Royal Hampshire hospital, Winchester, to which both she and her husband were taken, and where the Captain died, it was stated she was in a very serious condition.

Trapped By Flames
Hemmed in by the flames, the Rodneys were forced to jump from the bedroom window. Captain Rodney smashed it with his fists and assisted his wife to make the first leap. She landed in the flower bed, injuring her back. She was stunned for a moment, then painfully crawled away on her hands and knees, her husband followed, as soon as she had moved away.

The Captain's arms were badly cut by the broken glass and his hands were nearly severed when he was picked up. He died soon after reaching the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, all the other guests except the Duke, and all the servants escaped in their night clothes. Mrs. McCormick was reported suffering from shock.

SOCIALLY PROMINENT
Chicago, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Leander J. McCormick, whose English country home was destroyed by fire today, is the second son of Leander Hamilton McCormick of Washington, New York and Europe and a grandnephew of Cyrus, founder of International Harvester Co.

The younger Leander served with the Blackhawk Division during the World War, married Alice Cudahy in 1917 and was divorced in 1928. His second marriage, last July 12 was a social event in London. The bride was the daughter of the late Comte de Fontaine de Paris, and the marriage occurred soon after she was divorced from her first husband.

The three grandsons of the first Leander, who was a brother of Cyrus the first, all have taken homes in England: Leander III in the estate that was the scene of tragedy today; Allister, wedded to Joan Stevens after a much-bruited episode in which Mary Lanson Baker left him at the church; and Edward, as well as his sister, Henrietta, who married Frederick Goodhart an Englishman.

Requisition for McCabe is Honored

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Governor Park today granted Illinois extradition requests for James McCabe, wanted at Dixon, Ill., on a burglary and larceny charge, and Arthur Rosenberg sought for violation of a parole on a robbery sentence to Joliet prison.

Rosenberg was paroled in December, 1932, after serving part of a term for armed robbery in Chicago. His parole was revoked recently. He is held in St. Louis. McCabe is under arrest in Joliet, Mo.

(Telegraph Special Service)

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 9.—Requisition papers for the return of Ernest J. McCabe from Joliet, Mo., to Dixon, Ill., on charges of burglary and larceny, were granted here this morning by Governor Park. Sheriff Fred Richardson and Chief Deputy Ward Miller left immediately upon the honoring of the papers, for Joliet to take McCabe, who is in custody at this place, in charge and return him to Dixon, where he escaped jail August 30.

FERA Buys 12,000 Bushels of Apples

Chicago, Dec. 9.—(AP)—A grant of $12,500 from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration has made possible the purchase and distribution of approximately 12,000 bushels of apples by the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, officials announced today.

The announcement said the funds were extended for the specific purpose of apple purchases when the Department of Agriculture reported that one of the most serious crop surpluses was that of apples.

Officials said the fruit would be furnished to county emergency relief committees to be distributed in addition to regular food allowances to needy families.

Bandmaster's Widow Sues for Insurance

Chicago.—Mrs. Frances Schildhauer went to court to start suit to collect $3,000 in life insurance carried by her late husband, Edwin O. Schildhauer, high school bandmaster, whose mysterious slaying a year ago has never been solved. She seeks payment of a double indemnity clause and the hearing was continued.

A British army officer, Maj. Angus Howard R. Ogilvy, died in Fez, Morocco, 27 years ago, but was not buried in England until this summer.

The Story of Christmas

And even as the shepherds gave praise for the birth of their Saviour, there came out of the east unto Jerusalem Three Wise Men, saying, Where is He that is born king of the Jews? We have seen His star in the east.

12 SHOPPING DAYS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

LINDBERGH TO TAKE TRIP TO BRAZIL JUNGLE

Plans To Fly Up Amazon River About 800 Miles

Para, Brazil, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh decided definitely today to fly into the interior of Brazil tomorrow.

The flying Colonel set his goal as Manaus, more than 800 miles inland up the Amazon river.

He planned to leave that point Monday to return to the United States by way of Trinidad, Puerto Rico and Miami.

It was not indicated whether he would fly overland from Manaus on his homeward journey or return to the seacoast by way of the Amazon. The shortest overland flight to the coast would require him to pilot the big seaplane, in which he and his wife recently made their trans-Atlantic flight, over more than 600 miles of wild jungle.

They arrived here yesterday from Natal, Brazil, alighting in Guarajuba Bay after having covered the 1,894 miles in seven hours and 23 minutes.

A cheering crowd, including state officials, United States Consul George E. Seltzer and prominent members of the American colony greeted them.

Afterward, Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh were taken to the home of an American, A. Pickeral.

"State of Alarm" Throughout Spain

Madrid, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Premier Diego Martinez Barrios declared a "state of alarm" throughout Spain today following the death of at least twenty persons and the wounding of hundreds in extremist revolutionary disorders in the northeast.

"A state of alarm" is the next thing to martial law and supersedes the "state of prevention" declared Sunday which placed assault guards and other national police forces on the alert in preparation for the convening of parliament yesterday. The disorders were believed instigated by disgruntled adherents of the leftist groups as the result of the parliamentary election landslide last month toward the conservative elements in Spanish politics. Apparently the actual convening of Parliament was the signal for the outbreak of rioting.

Illinois Racing to Get CWA Funds

Chicago, Dec. 9.—(AP)—With the deadline only a few hours away officials of the Illinois Civil Works Administration raced against time today as they sought projects that would employ thousands of unemployed men back to work.

Unless projects are approved by tonight giving assurance that the state's quota of 231,750 men will be at work by December 15, Howard G. Hunter, field agent of the Federal CWA, said the jobs probably would be assigned to other states that already filed their quotas.

From downstate came reports last night that three cities had advanced projects that had been approved, giving work to 501 men. They are: Jacksonville, projects requiring 319 workers; Champaign 109 and Peoria, 82.

Mother, Determined to be "Boss" Around the House" Refuses Consent to Operation to Save Her Daughter

Milwaukee, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Whether the court can force a mother to sanction an operation to save her 16-year-old daughter, to save her from permanent inability to use her mouth today was being studied by Judge Edmund Gausewitz of the Juvenile Court.

Yesterday the girl and her mother appeared in court, the girl mumbling almost inaudible answers to questions of the court and probation officers. Her jaw became infected several years ago and her condition has since become so serious that she now can open her mouth but a fraction of an inch. Doctors say that in time she will be unable to use her mouth at all.

To Make Toys

The Dixon Homecraft Club, a local organization with about twenty members, plans to do some Goodfellow work this Christmas time in the way of supplying toys to children who would not otherwise receive them. The members of the Homecraft Club make the toys in their own home workshops. There will be at least 150 toys, which will include toy ducks, doll beds and hobby horses on sticks.

The Dixon Homecraft Club is a very interesting organization, formed here recently, and patterned after similar organizations in other cities. They meet every two weeks and so far have held their meetings at the Reynolds Wire Co. plant in a room that has been provided for them. The purpose of the club is recreation and education and features of the meetings are lectures and talks on various subjects, such as machine tools die casting and other mechanical and woodworking subjects. The dues are nominal, only $1 a year, to provide a fund for postage, etc. The officers are: A. O. Berg, President and E. W. Gerdes, Secretary.

Most of the members make the home workshop a hobby and some of them have very elaborate and complete shops in their homes.

Ex-Senator Lea's Appeal is Denied

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Colonel Luke Lea, former United States Senator, and his eldest son, Luke Lea, Jr., fighting extradition to North Carolina lost in the Tennessee Supreme court today.

The high court affirmed the ruling of Criminal Judge John T. Cunningham, who had sustained North Carolina's demurrer to the Lea's petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Lea and his son instituted habeas corpus proceedings after Gov. Hill McAlister had ordered their extradition to North Carolina, where they were convicted more than two years ago of violating the state banking laws. The elder Lea was sentenced to six to ten years imprisonment, and Lea, Jr., was given the alternative of paying $25,000 in fines and costs or serving two to six years.

They immediately made plans for carrying their case to the United States Supreme Court. Pending that action, they were ordered released under bond of $20,000 each.

Indicted Cashier of Tamaroa Bk. Suicide

Tamaroa, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A verdict of suicide was entered today in the death of Howard B. Haines, indicted cashier of the First National Bank of Tamaroa, found dead last night in the basement of his home, a bullet in his head.

Haines, indicted at Danville in September by a federal grand jury, also was postmaster here and chairman of the Perry County Democratic committee. Officials said six charges, four of misapplication of funds and two of embezzlement, were pending against him. The total amount involved, all bank funds, was $4,500. He had been at liberty on bond.

The bank is being operated on a restricted basis by a federal conservator.

Haines took out $10,000 of insurance six weeks ago, naming his wife and children as beneficiaries, officials said.

Santa's Touring Home—Here Next Tuesday

Here is Santa Claus' log cabin—his regular home on wheels, which will be in Dixon next Tuesday as part of the big Christmas celebration. Santa has promised to be here for the entire day with all his helpers and equipment, and he is now moving almost his entire North Pole equipment down to this city. It will be a great day for the children and grown-ups of the entire community.

There will be a big parade at 1 o'clock in which Santa's wolf-dog team, his fairies and helpers will stage a pageant, and during the parade Miss Mary Christmas will release 300 toy balloons, to each of which will be attached a ticket which will entitle the boy or girl finding it to a Christmas present.

If it is presented to the store whose name is printed thereon.

During the afternoon a Christmas program will be broadcast from Santa's own broadcasting station, in which many local people will assist the North-Pole cheer-bringers, the program continuing until 9 o'clock in the evening, to which hour all the stores of the city will remain open.

"America's Sweetheart" Sues "Gypsy-Footed" Husband: Cruelty

Hollywood, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Love that came to them in the maytime of their film careers and blossomed into a marriage that for years was regarded as Hollywood's perfect romance had found its end today for Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in a brief but revealing divorce complaint.

In cold and concise legal phraseology, Miss Pickford, known to millions of theatergoers as "America's Sweetheart," wrote an unhappy finale yesterday to what had been considered as filmdom's most beautiful love story. Supporters of

Sister of Convict Has "Partially" Confessed Part In Jail Break Plot

Rockford Woman To See Priest Before Continuing

Joliet, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Jeanette Latino of Rockford, sister of a convict, and her husband James were charged with aiding and abetting an attempted prison break and were held in $10,000 bonds each today.

The couple was accused of plotting a wholesale delivery of prisoners from the state penitentiary here.

Code letters and a telegram were intercepted, a pistol tossed across the wall was discovered by a guard, and the jail break never started. But six prisoners were sent to solitary confinement for their part in the plot and one of them was Donald Loftus, robber and suspected kidnaper, the brother of Mrs. Latino. She and her husband were captured at Rockford late yesterday.

Unable to furnish the $10,000 bond, they were lodged in the Will county jail today to await trial. The hearing was set for Dec. 18 by Justice of the Peace Dominick Romano.

After hours of questioning the pair at the county jail, State's Attorney William R. McCabe said a note sent to the prison, but intercepted by a guard. It mentioned a telegram and a package.

The telegram, McCabe said, referred to a message sent to a prisoner advising him of his father's death. The father had been dead 20 years, and the package he interpreted as meaning the box containing the revolver and shells which guards believe was tossed over the walls.

Asked To See Priest
Before making a further confession, McCabe said, Mrs. Latino asked for permission to consult with a priest today.

Meanwhile, it appeared likely that Loftus would be questioned concerning the part he intended playing in the wholesale escape. He was sentenced a few months ago from McHenry county on a charge of robbery with a gun and at one time was a suspect in an Arizona kidnapping.

Prison officials revealed the plot yesterday after carefully watching its progress without arousing the suspicions of those involved.

They said the convicts had first planned to make a dash for freedom last Sunday, using a group of local women singers as shields, and then decided to incite a riot.

The first plan became futile when guards found the revolver and the second when they seized the half dozen knives the plotters had made in the prison shops.

Verdict Against Patent Medicine Maker for $10,000

Chicago, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Henry Lapp, a machinist of Ft. Wayne, Ind., today held a $10,000 judgment as a result of the verdict in his damage suit against the Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago.

A jury in Federal Judge William H. Holly's court yesterday awarded Lapp a judgment for that amount on his contention that he had been made seriously ill by a preparation manufactured by the company and administered by a physician.

Lapp originally sued for $150,000.

FINE PROSPECT AT DIXON WIRE SCREEN PLANTS

Reynolds Co. Running Both Plants Full Time at Present

Both plants of the Reynolds Wire Company in this city are operating on a 24-hour a day basis at the present time, with fine prospects for the continuation of this activity throughout the winter months. A number of large orders which have been received recently by the Reynolds company are responsible for the capacity operation of both plants.

Officers of the Reynolds Wire Co. are very optimistic concerning the outlook for the coming year, saying prospects for next year are far more encouraging than they were for the year just closing. Ordinarily at this time of the year, the plants are operating on a limited basis, but the fine business which has been given to the company within the last few weeks and the demand for the high quality of hardware merchandise manufactured at the Dixon factories have continued to keep them running full time. The prospect for increased employment for the large number of workers at both Reynolds plants is most encouraging and the announcement today of the continuation of the employment program adds to other optimistic news which has been received by citizens of Dixon during the past few days.

JOE BOLAND TO BE ASSISTANT RAMBLER COACH

Layden To Be Director of Athletics as Well as Coach

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The appointment of Elmer Layden, one of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen," as Athletic Director and Football Coach and the selection of Joe Boland as his assistant on the gridiron staff was announced at Notre Dame today.

The Rev. John F. O'Hara, Acting President, announced the choice of Boland through his office here shortly after the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, confirmed the reports of Layden's appointment, while enroute here from Rochester, Minn.

The new famous sealed envelope was opened shortly after the definite announcement of Layden's appointment was made. It contained a statement, signed by Father O'Donnell, praising Harper and Anderson.

Brother of Slain Bluford Man Lays Crime to Robbers

Bluford, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Jefferson county authorities today were investigating the slaying last night of Rozier Green at his home south of here where he resided with his brother Wiley.

Wiley Green told police his brother was shot by two of three men who drove up to their home about 7 P. M. last night and called for Rozier to come out of the house.

Wiley said when Rozier appeared on the porch the men called for him to hold up his hands and about the same time two of the men fired and fatally wounded him.

Wiley said he rushed to the door and exchanged shots with the trio but did not believe he hit any of the men. He told police today he believed the men sought to rob him and his brother.

An inquest is scheduled for late today.

French Premier is Given Large Vote

Paris, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The cabinet of Premier Camille Chautemps, in a surprising show of strength in the face of attacks from many sides, won an overwhelming vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies today. The count was 403 to 63.

The vote came on the vital measure in the government's program to balance the budget and protect the French franc, that calling for reducing the pay of functionaries.

Despite the apparently sweeping victory, however, the government still faced many dangerous traps in its progress toward passage of the cabinet's program measures.

The large vote generally was attributed to the political aspects involved, instead of to a real sentiment of approval of cabinet policy.

other purpose.

He declared that a meeting held at Carnegie Hall, New York City, November 27, represented the Crusaders as a "rally to fight for the gold standard, criticizing the President and government of the United States for having gone off the gold standard and urging an early return thereto."

Fred G. Clarke of New York, the Commander-in-Chief of the Crusaders, informed of the Farley prediction, said the organization's charter was not limited, and that the Crusaders did not oppose the Roosevelt monetary policy. It opposed the "wild inflationist bloc," he said.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A move was on foot today to deprive the national organization known as the "Crusaders" of its charter on the ground that it exceeded its chartered limits "in opposing the monetary policies of the Roosevelt administration."

William W. Farley, former Democratic state chairman and a member of the Crusaders, revealed last night that he had petitioned Attorney General Homer B. Cummings to act to have the charter cancelled.

Farley said members were solicited by the organization to combat the 18th Amendment "and for no

ROCKFORD TORCH MURDER CASE IN TWO-DAY RECESS

Accused Woman Is Still Confident Of Her Being Acquitted

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Still confident of the murder of her former husband, Earl, whom she is accused of slaying by soaking his clothing in gasoline and touching him off with a match, Mrs. May Hanson sat in her cell today playing solitaire and commenting caustically upon testimony given Friday at her trial. The court recessed in the case Friday night until Monday morning.

"That Fire Marshal certainly told some whoppers," Mrs. Hanson declared to a county jail matron, referring to the testimony of Sherman V. Coultas, Jacksonville, who related on the stand yesterday how he found a partly filled can of gasoline in her garage, and of her contradictory statements to him when he questioned her.

Said Stories Conflicted
In one breath she told him she had run to her husband's car as it stood burning in the lane at her home to see if her daughter June was inside it, and in another said she had seen June running to the home of a neighbor, he had testified.

As a holiday was taken from the taking of testimony, the state prepared to recall to the stand Walter Bengtson, automotive engineer, who testified Friday afternoon that the fuel tank of Hanson's car had not exploded. He will be asked several hypothetical questions regarding fires in cars of the type which Hanson was driving when he met his death.

More than thirty witnesses are still to be called by the prosecution. State's Attorney Robert E. Nash has indicated. Among them will be June, 12-year-old daughter of the estranged couple.

Daughter Near Mother
During the entire trial June has sat near her mother, comforting her at every opportunity, and has shown little inclination to converse with her father's people, who also have attended the court sessions.

Of these, Mrs. Eliza Hanson, aged mother of the victim of one of the most bizarre deaths in the history of Winnebago county, has been the most affected by gruesome details of Earl's death as brought out in testimony.

During the questioning of Dr. H. D. Palmer, physician who examined the burns on the victim's body, she sobbed so convulsively that her daughter, Mrs. Edith Nelson, Osceola, Ia., was forced to lead her from the court room.

Compton CWA Work Finally Approved

The village of Compton will begin work within a few days on a project which will extend the present drain system, the project be included in Lee county's list of civil works administration program. Confirmation of the project was received this morning by D. H. Spencer, chairman of the county welfare organization.

The project provides for the construction of a 12 inch tile line and the relaying of existing tile system in the corporate limits of Compton, the total cost being estimated at $1,825.00. The work is expected to provide 2,600 man-hours of unskilled labor and 300 hours of skilled labor.

Horner and Kelly Affirm Friendship

Chicago.—If there has been any break in the personal friendship between Governor Henry Horner and Mayor Edward J. Kelly neither of them know it. After passing through Chicago yesterday without seeing the Mayor, Gov. Horner scoffed at the idea that there had been a break between them but said friends certainly had a right to a "difference of opinion." The Mayor backed him up even to the "difference of opinion" statement, indicating that they have not gotten together on their conflicting ideas for adequate state liquor control laws.

46 CWA Projects in State Approved

Chicago, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Applications from Illinois cities and communities for funds from the Public Works Administration are being forwarded to Washington at the rate of 30 a week. I. F. Stern, assistant state engineer of the Illinois PWA, said today in replying to reports that no more projects would be approved in the state until spring.

During November, he said, Illinois was surpassed only by Massachusetts in the number of projects approved at Washington, and said that to date 46 projects costing $52,000,000 had been approved for the state.

Refused a Drink: Was Fatally Shot

Kohout died in a hospital after which murder charges were placed against Fonda.

What is claimed to be the first aviation service station is located on Long Island.

OPPOSITION TO
"UNREASONABLE"
RUM TAX HEARD

Congressmen and Senators Fear Continuation of 'Legger'

Washington, Dec. 9—(AP)—Opposition to the administration's suggestion of a $260 a gallon tax on liquor developed today on Capitol Hill as the government strengthened its control plans with the presidential signature of codes for the liquor wholesale and rectifying industries.

Complaints that the tax on strong spirits proposed by the President's interdepartmental alcohol committee was too high came from several members of the House Ways and Means committee. That group will meet Monday with the Senate Finance committee on the recommendations.

Meanwhile, the administration, using a newly proposed sliding scale of liquor import duties as a bargaining, pushed negotiations with half a dozen foreign countries for increased imports of liquor in exchange for enlarged takings of American products.

For Lower Tax

In the opposition to raising the liquor tax from its present $110 level to $260, Representative West (D-Ohio) said that as far as he could judge, the general sentiment of the Ways and Means committee was for a much lower tax.

"Personally, I am in favor of a tax of $150 a gallon," West said. "The bootlegger is established and if the federal and state governments impose high taxes, it will mean his continuation in business."

Wants Tax Unchanged

"I propose to suggest that as a means to drive out illicit trafficking in liquor that the present tax of $110 a gallon be retained for six months and automatically increased to a reasonable amount thereafter."

Representative John J. Connor (D-N. Y.), long a leader of the wets in the House, said he proposed to ask Congress to authorize an investigation into the present liquor prices, which he described as "excessive." O'Connor said that good whiskey should sell for $1.50 a quart after payment of the present federal tax.

"I have been informed that two groups control 90 per cent of the rye and bourbon whiskey in the country," O'Connor said. "They are the National Distillers and the Schenley Distillers. I am considering drafting a resolution to demand an investigation by Congress in January."

To Revise Taxes

After meeting with the Senate Finance committee on liquor taxes the House committee will begin hearings on the proposed bill to revise the income tax and other federal revenue laws.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., is to be the first witness next Friday. Other government officials will be heard on Saturday.

The rectifiers code, as signed today by the President, requires all concerns engaged in the industry to procure permits from the Federal Alcohol Control Administration. The director of the administration would have the power to revoke or suspend the permits.

The code goes into effect Sunday.

Permits will be granted to any person who has complied with both state and federal laws governing rectification and who has presented satisfactory evidence of his "previous experience, financial standing and trade connections."

The permit would be effective during the duration of the code.

A maximum bond of $25,000, scaled down from that figure at the discretion of the administration, must be posted.

The code authorizes the FACA, cooperating with the code authorizing to limit the production of rectified spirits and the production among the members of the industry. The production may be either reduced or increased, as the FACA determines the status of the supply and demand.

The code authority is to receive from the industry price lists and terms of sales. The prices, the code provides, must not be low enough to constitute destructive price cutting nor high enough to encourage bootlegging.

May Tax Securities

He said he believed this language was broad enough to give Congress the right even to tax the income from state and local obligations, but that question as well as whether to apply the proposed levy to outstanding issues of federal bonds together with future issues, would be left for future decision.

Others contend a constitutional amendment would be necessary and that any additional revenue thus raised would be offset by increased rates of interest the government would have to pay.

Legislation to tax the income from government securities now tax-exempt is being prepared by Senator Ashurst (D. Ariz.) for consideration by Congress.

The chairman of the Judiciary committee, who introduced a proposed constitutional amendment reporters today he had come to the last session for this purpose, told "definite conclusion" that the same end could be accomplished by legislative enactment.

Like Senator Borah (R. Ida.) and some others, Ashurst said he had decided after a long study that the 16th amendment to the Constitution was "all inclusive" in that it gave Congress the power to "levy and collect taxes on income from whatever source derived."

'DOUG AND MARY'
AT PARTING OF
PERFECT MATCH

Hollywood often referred to 'Doug and Mary' as the answer to the questions: "Do Hollywood marriages endure?"

Thirteen years ago the lovely Mary told friends she was "blissfully happy." Once she said Fairbanks was the "one great love in her life," but in her divorce complaint she described him as being mentally cruel to her and indifferent.

A Different Picture

He pictured him as being other than the brave, heart-storming hero of a dozen cinema dramas on which he built a reputation as being one of the screen's greatest swashbuckling lovers. The lovely Mary accused him of neglecting her, of having caused her embarrassment and humiliation.

For her feelings and sensibilities, she charged, the globe-roaming Fairbanks lacked consideration. He had what his son, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., described as the "giddy-foot" Miss Pickford claim, and publicly announced he had no interest in life except travel.

"That," she said, "destroyed the legitimate ends of matrimony."

Doug roamed at will over the face of the earth, she complained, and was absent from home for months.

"Unfair Comment"

"That," Miss Pickford charged, "caused much public criticism and unfair comment."

Prior to June, 1930, when Fairbanks is said to have disregarded her wishes and to have assumed an attitude of indifference toward their marital status, Mary traveled with him, visiting titled and royal friends in Europe. Then Fairbanks began to wander alone, she said, and the public began to talk.

"For the past several years" the actress said, after the complaint was filed, "my married life has been increasingly unhappy. Being convinced that under existing circumstances the future offers no solution, it is with the deepest regret that I am filing suit for divorce."

She Keeps "Dream-Home"

"Pickford" the great mansion atop a Hollywood hill which Mary often referred to as her "dream-home," remained in her possession under a property settlement effected out of court, she said.

She consistently declined to comment on the numerous rumors reaching Hollywood connecting Fairbanks' name with at least one titled Englishwoman.

Some months ago "America's Sweetheart," admitted she and Fair

TO AN OLD MELODEON

A attic corner grudges crowd space.
Yet through the dust and cobwebs of the years I see you newly treasured.
Love appears...
Basqued muslin gown—smoothed hair—her youthful grace subdued to proper mode. The candle glow
With you, enhanced her comeliness, I know
Adored Cecilia, saintly, Heaven armed
With melody—her hearers never chafed
At cords that timed the stately minuet.
Virginia reel or lancers' giddy fun; True to the fiddle strains "white fingers let me glimpse a paradise. Melodist! You are my yesterday... and myrrh... and muck...
This corner where you near oblivion
Has music trembling in the light lanced dusk—
The wraith of love—and songs and dancing done.

The E. R. B. Class of St. Paul's Lutheran church held their annual Christmas party and guest night Thursday evening in the church parlors.

There were fifty present to enjoy the tempting dinner and the Christmas program afterward.

The tables from which the nicely appointed dinner was served, were in the form of a star, with a Christmas tree in the center. The red candles and various colored lights added to the pleasure of all present.

After all had enjoyed the delicious food, a program was given, which included the song by all, "Silent Night," and Mrs. Christensen gave the story of the Christ Child at Bethlehem.

Miss Henrietta Buchman, the treasurer, gave the year's report. Rev. L. W. Walter followed with prayer and Master Lloyd Walter gave a piano solo, followed by a reading by Mrs. Roy Raffenberg, and a violin solo by Jewel Auman.

Lecture by Richard Canterbury Is Most Interesting

A large audience enjoyed a lecture last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Durkes, delivered by Richard Canterbury of Lake Bluff, Ill. Mr. Canterbury is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Mandeville. Mrs. Mandeville was formerly Miss Leona Canterbury of Franklin Grove.

The lecture dealt with the island of Mallorca, in the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Spain, where Mr. Canterbury spent 15 months, studying the Spanish language and employed as circulation manager of a daily newspaper, printed in English, for the many Americans and other English speaking tourists and residents of the island.

Mr. Canterbury is only 21 years old and his lecture on the island, illustrated by beautiful stereopticon views, was particularly and unusually well done. The lecture was held under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church, for whose benefit the proceeds are to be devoted.

SUCCESS OF REPEAL UP TO THE PEOPLE.

The eighteenth amendment is history; the obituary has been read; the mourners have done about all the reminiscing that the situation permits.

Now we are facing ahead, and most of us, probably, are wondering just what the wet era is likely to bring us.

Like practically all human devices, it will bring us just about what we make it bring.

Prohibition, which was to have cleared up century-old problems of crime, crookedness, and misery, failed because we thought we could take out of it more than we put in.

Its failure was tragic and expensive; looking back at it, we might as well resolve right now not to make the same failure with the post-prohibition regime.

A lot of factors went into the decision to do away with prohibition. None, however, was quite as important as the nation's desire to get out from under the speakeasy and the beer-runner. They were a load too heavy to be carried any farther. We have dropped them.

But when we dropped them, they didn't break into little pieces. They still are lying there, waiting to be picked up again. And if we do pick them up again, we shall find that the expected gains of prohibition repeal are illusory.

That is to say that, just as we couldn't create perfect temperance by passing a law, we likewise shall be unable to abolish speakeasy and beer baron by statute.

The job requires widespread co-operation. The man in the street—the ordinary citizen, who likes his drink now and then and is willing to pay for it—must help.

If he buys what he buys from legal sources, and from legal sources only, he will be giving the illegal booze traffic a blow from which it never will recover.

That trade, like any other, can't exist without customers. Its customers now have the chance to get what they want in a legal manner. If they do so, the speakeasy dies and the beer baron goes and hunts for a job.

And right there is where the big test of the new regime will come. Will the people who protested against prohibition support the new laws with their pocketbooks? Or, to put it more exactly, will they stop supporting the speakeasy?

If they do, the new regime will work. If they don't, it will fail very miserably.

LEGGE, RUGGED INDIVIDUALIST.

Alexander Legge, who now is being eulogized throughout the country, was a product of rugged individualism. He was 68 years of age. What place will the child born today find 68 years hence, and how will he find it. What kind of a country are we creating for him?

Legge was a product of the era that made railroad presidents out of telegraph operators, and sometimes out of section hands. It made master mechanics out of call boys. It made a president of the International Harvester company out of a farm boy which knew his way around among the farmers. The list of such achievements is interminable.

Such successes were the result of burning of much midnight oil.

Rugged individualism now is something scorned.

BETRAYING THE VICTORS.

Congressmen, says a Washington correspondent, are getting ready to do a little gunning for Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority when the next session opens.

One reason is that the Tennessee Valley program was a bit slow in getting under way. The other is that Dr. Morgan has been absolutely impervious to the appeals of patronage-seeking politicians who want to hand out jobs to party hacks.

Criticism on the ground that there has been undue delay is one thing; criticism on the ground that Dr. Morgan has rebuffed the spoilsman is something else again. Any congressman who has the nerve to squawk about this second point automatically will convict himself of having a peanut-sized conception of his own duties and responsibilities.

If Dr. Morgan has turned down the deserving-Democrat boys, he deserves the thanks of the nation.

STABLE GOVERNMENT.

It is a common thing for students of the science of politics to complain that the American system of government is unduly rigid and inflexible as compared with the parliamentary systems of such democracies as England and France. Those systems, it is said, reflect far more directly the wishes of the people. As soon as a government loses the confidence of the masses, it falls.

All this may be quite true; but recent events in France seem to indicate that a parliamentary system can be altogether too flexible.

One premier follows another in dizzy succession in Paris just now. The ill effects of such continual changes are too obvious to need mentioning; one only can add that a little more rigidity in government, after the American fashion, might be an excellent thing for France just now.

As Santa Claus walked out of sight and left wee Dotty Tynymite to paint the pretty little dolls, she said, "Now for some fun!"

"With dolls I've always loved to play. Why, I could coddle them all day. When I have finished painting, I will rock them, one by one."

She found a can of paint. It was pink. "This will be fine for cheeks, I think," exclaimed the happy little girl. Just then two elves walked in.

"We came to help you, if we can," cried out one funny looking man. "I need no help, but you can watch," said Dotty, with a wide grin.

Of course, in the meantime old Santa was a very busy man because he had to find some one to work the Tynymites could do.

He joined the bunch and Windy cried, "Some little airplanes I have spied. I'll gladly try each one out, if you think that will help you."

"An aviator bold am I. I have often sailed out through the sky and battled with the wild winds. That's why Windy is my name."

"Of course, I know your planes are toys, just meant for little girls and boys, but if they do not work just right, it will be an awful shame."

"Hurrah for you," cried Santa. "Gee, you will be a great big help to me. I will send two little elves with you and you can go to work."

"Wind up the planes and run them around. Whatever's wrong will then be found. The little elves will help you, lad, and do not let them shirk."

Soon Windy met the little elves. They said, "We're pretty good, ourselves, at fixing planes, so come along. The work will be like play."

"Some painting we will have to do. We'll color planes in every hue. It will not take us very long, if our task we stay."

AN UNMAILED LETTER

Mr. James H. Kirby, Petersburg, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Kirby:

Well, you are in the news of the day. The story of your threat to run for office against the Speaker of the House of Representatives has been given an airing in the press.

If you aren't appointed to a political job soon, you'll just up and oppose stinky, old Mr. Rainey. You know, Mr. Kirby, you remind me of the little boy who threatened to tell his mother on the boy next door if he wasn't allowed to holler down the rain barrel.

But I'm sure you'd make a very

Coming Back?

Perhaps we'll see Camilla Horn again in some American film. She made her first step westward from Berlin when she arrived in London, to appear in the new British play, "Contraband." Lily Damita had declined the part, because she thought it was not suitable for her. Miss Horn is shown on her arrival in London.

fine representative of the people in your district. You have already shown beyond doubt that you have their welfare at heart. You would take a political job (which wouldn't cost the taxpayers very much) and then you would probably wage war against political deadwood, unlike yourself, which is sapping the funds of the people.

Of course you were defeated in the race for the nomination for Senator in 1930. But that was three years ago. A lot of water has gone over the dam since then, as the fellow says. Why, that was before the people really knew you (not as a politician, but as the statesman that you surely are). Now that they do know you, there could be no question of the result if you do decide to oppose the Speaker.

I was very much interested in the platform on which you propose to stand. You would sever diplomatic relations with France, because that nation repudiated its debts to the United States. Of course the realization of that object would plunge America into a war. But what of that? We have too many unemployed anyway, haven't we? We might be able to kill off a few of these people, and that would make everything hotter to say.

After thinking over the matter, I am thoroughly convinced that America doesn't really need a good five cent cigar, Mr. Kirby. Well, anyway, not nearly so much as it needs more good statesmen like yourself.

Keep up the fight. Don't show the white feathers. And remember always that this government of the people, by the people, and for the people shall not perish from the earth as long as such men as you are around.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. Bundy.

Ordered To Report!

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Gosh, what a thrill! Here are my orders to join the Second Byrd Antarctic Expedition. The youngest member of the crew.

I'm going to the South Pole! To Little America—if Little America is still there, deep under the snow where it was left by the Admiral and his men in January, 1931.

Maybe I'd better tell you who I am and what this is all about. I am 22 years old. Just graduated from Harvard last June. My father is Captain Arthur Abell, U. S. N., retired. He is now stationed at the Boston Navy Yard.

In charge of the Massachusetts Nautical School Ship, the U. S. S. Nanuet. One of my grandfathers George Sanford, has been in the oil business for more than 50 years.

It would seem, therefore, that I come by two things naturally—love of sea adventure and my interest in automotive lubrication problems. I am going as fuel engineer of the Expedition and, believe me, it's going to be a big job. We are carrying every type of automotive engine—in monoplane, biplane, auto-gyro, snowmobile, tractor, oil-driven steamship, outboard motor boat, auxiliary sailing vessel and a motor boat cruiser. ## Ordered To Report!

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Gosh, what a thrill! Here are my orders to join the Second Byrd Antarctic Expedition. The youngest member of the crew.

I'm going to the South Pole! To Little America—if Little America is still there, deep under the snow where it was left by the Admiral and his men in January, 1931.

Maybe I'd better tell you who I am and what this is all about. I am 22 years old. Just graduated from Harvard last June. My father is Captain Arthur Abell, U. S. N., retired. He is now stationed at the Boston Navy Yard.

In charge of the Massachusetts Nautical School Ship, the U. S. S. Nanuet. One of my grandfathers George Sanford, has been in the oil business for more than 50 years.

It would seem, therefore, that I come by two things naturally—love of sea adventure and my interest in automotive lubrication problems. I am going as fuel engineer of the Expedition and, believe me, it's going to be a big job. We are carrying every type of automotive engine—in monoplane, biplane, auto-gyro, snowmobile, tractor, oil-driven steamship, outboard motor boat, auxiliary sailing vessel and a motor boat cruiser. There are engines of every type on this amazing Expedition, air-cooled, water-cooled, engines for self-contained electrical generator units, even a Diesel engine.

THREE CHANGES IN GRID RULES ARE PROPOSED

Big Ten Coaches Suggest Alterations In Regulations

Chicago, Dec. 9—(AP)—The business of the annual Western Conference meeting today had been boiled down to a joint session of athletic directors and faculty committees, and the arranging of schedules for baseball and minor sports.

The faculty men and athletic heads had dinner together last night but discussed only routine affairs, chief among them financial business. No changes were recommended and it was indicated that the member institutions would schedule games and meets on the same basis as last year, when some trimming was done.

Football coaches did most of the business yesterday, recommending three changes in the rules, and offering for the approval of the faculty committee, two suggestions. Of the latter one asked for the establishment of a modified training table, and the other for starting pre-season football practice on September 10 instead of September 15.

Against "Dead Ball"

The coaches agreed that the rules should be altered to permit forward passing from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage, instead of from not less than five yards back of the scrimmage line. They also went on record as being opposed to the "dead ball" rule adopted two years ago, under this rule the ball is dead when any part of the ball carrier's body, other than his hands or feet, touches the ground.

It also was proposed that by agreement on days when a strong wind blows over the gridiron, the team in possession of the ball within its own 20 yard line, have the option of surrendering the ball at a point 25 yards down the field without kicking.

Schedule Meets

The annual indoor track championships will be held at the University of Chicago, March 10, and the outdoor meet at Northwestern University May 18 and 19. Fencing and gymnastics championships will be held at Chicago March 10, with the wrestling meet at Michigan March 9 and 10. The swimming title event was awarded to Iowa for March 9 and 10. The golfers will compete at Northwestern May 21 and 22, and the tennis championship will be played at Chicago, May 17-18 and 19.

The greatest admirers of the all-around American bicycle champion are his wife and little daughter, Audley. The champion, Norman Hill, is shown above with his family inspecting a tandem bike Norman uses in training for six-day grinds.

Carnegie Tech, led by its brilliant young coach—the youngest mentor of a major eleven in the country—was marching on Michigan State this year for an important battle at East Lansing, Mich.

The coach, Howard Harpster, had left orders with officials at the hotel where his players were staying to keep pie out of the clutches of attack, clashed with the husky Gaels of St. Mary's, and Southern California's Trojans, beaten only by Stanford, wound up their campaign against Washington. St. Mary's was a decided choice over the Mustangs and Southern California over Washington, although the latter was the only team which could defeat Stanford, the far west's Rose Bowl nominee.

In the south Biff Jones' Louisiana State Tigers closed an undefeated season at Baton Rouge against Tennessee with the invading Volunteers, led by Beattie Feathers, apparently holding the edge.

BITS ABOUT BOWLING

By Jimmy Donahue
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

A bowler, like a golfer, has a special stance before delivering the ball that makes for good control and a better game.

Before you face the alley, take the ball off the rack with the left hand, if you bowl with the right. The reason for this is that a heavy ball, carried around in the bowling hand while waiting for your turn at the boards, will tire your bowling arm.

Face the alley squarely. Stand with the feet together and with a firm grip on the ball. Rest or balance the ball in the left hand and crouch forward. Take aim and lower the ball just above the knees. Then you're ready for the stride.

The approach to the foul line is made with the right foot foremost. Four steps of about three feet each will bring you into position to deliver the ball when the right foot is behind.

Don't delay the stance too long. Here, too, the weight of the ball may serve to throw the bowler off balance. It's best to take quick aim and fire.

SHAKE-UP WILL BE OFFICIALLY TOLD THIS EVE

Notre Dame Officials are Expected To Make Announcement

BULLETIN
Chicago, Dec. 9—(AP)—The Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame University, today definitely confirmed reports that Elmer Layden, one of the "Four Horsemen," would become both Athletic Director and football coach at Notre Dame.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 9—(AP)—The football world will learn officially tonight the details of Notre Dame's athletic upheaval—that Elmer Layden will replace Hearty Anderson as the head football coach of the Irish.

As had been expected it became known yesterday that Anderson and Athletic Director Jesse Harper had terminated their connections at Notre Dame, but there was no official announcement. Layden, fullback of the late Knute Rockne's famous "Four Horsemen," and head coach at Duquesne University Pittsburgh, went no farther than to admit that he would confer with the Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., Acting President of Notre Dame, at Indianapolis.

It was reliably reported however, that the big shakeup would become official tonight when the Rev. Charles O'Donnell, C. S. C., President of the University, returned from Rochester, Minn., where he has been undergoing medical treatment. Father O'Hara left last night for Indianapolis. He said he had left a sealed envelope with his secretary with orders to withhold its contents until tonight.

Varied Rumors
It was said that Layden whose success in bringing Duquesne from comparative football obscurity to national prominence, would become head football coach and Director of Athletics. Another report, however, had George Koegan, basketball coach in line for the latter position.

The shakeup indicated almost a clean sweep in the football department. Of Anderson's assistants only Tom Conley, end coach, is to be retained. Frank (Nurdy) Hoffman, John (Ike) Vordich and Marchmont Schwartz being relieved to make room for Layden's choices. Mal Elward, Notre Dame end in 1915 and present end coach at Purdue, and Joe Boland, tackle on the 1924 Irish eleven, were Layden's prospective assistants.

First Job In Iowa
After completing his career at Notre Dame Layden coached successfully at Columbia College, Duquesne, Iowa, before going to Duquesne. Anderson played guard at Notre Dame in 1919-20 and served as assistant to Rockne until 1927 when he went to St. Louis University. He returned to Notre Dame in 1930 and became senior coach following Rockne's tragic death in 1931. He became head coach the next year when Jack Chevigny, the junior coach, resigned.

Harper made Notre Dame famous in football when his 1913 team, with Charles Doria throwing passes to Rockne, trounced Army in the first game of their traditional series. He returned from his Kansas ranch, after Rockne's death, to again become Athletic Director.

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DAVID BANNISTER undertakes to find out who killed TRACY KING, orchestra leader found dead in his hotel apartment. Bannister, an author and former newspaper man, works on the murder case with GAINES, star reporter for the Post.

Among those suspected of the crime are JAMES FRANCE, blond and pretty, known to have visited King shortly before his death; HERMAN SCHULACH who wrote King a threatening letter; and JOE PARROTT, down-and-out vaudeville actor. It is also known that MELVINA HOLLISTER, middle-aged spinster, had quarreled with King recently.

King was engaged to wealthy DENISE LANG, MATTHEW HOLISTER, Melvina's brother, tells Bannister he believes his sister knows something she is keeping from the police. Bannister is driving with PARKER COLEMAN, friend of Denise Lang's, when they see a wrecked car. Is it AL DRUGAN, member of King's orchestra. Drugan died recently of a heart attack. McNEAL of the detective bureau suspects his death may not have been accidental.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII

THE death of Al Drugan, known to be a close friend of Tracy King's, brought the King murder mystery into blazing headlines once more. On street corners and at dinner tables little else was talked of. Newspaper columns devoted to "letters to the editor" lengthened by inches. Why, indignant letter-writers demanded, had the police not solved this crime? Why had they not apprehended the murderer? How could honest, law-abiding citizens feel safe in their homes at night when such criminals were at large?

There were newspaper accounts, too, hinting that the "accident" in which Drugan met his death was something far more sinister. Captain McNeal had refused to be quoted on the subject, but many others knew the facts. Bannister and J. Randolph Galney talked it over, sitting in a corner of the Post city room.

"What gets me," Galney declared, "is the fact that whenever a piece of news breaks you manage to be there before it happens. Not just afterward but before! That's what I can't understand. Won't you tell me how you do it? There was the day Denise Lang walked into police headquarters with her story about the other girl. Then there's this accident and you find Drugan's body—"

"Coleman really did that," Bannister objected. "He saw the car before I did."

"Yes, but you got the story just the same. I don't see how you do it. Here I play away all day long—"

"And you're doing a swell job!" Bannister told him crisply. "An excellent job. I just happened to be lucky a couple of times, as anyone might be. But luck isn't enough to see you through a job like this."

"Oh, isn't it? Well, I wish I had some of yours, just the same." There was a silence for a moment, then Galney went on. "Drugan ran into bad luck, too," he said. "You know I've been thinking all day about that talk we had with him the other night."

"So have I," admitted Bannister. "Remember how he kept telling us what a swell job King was?"

"Yes."

THERE was a pause again, unbroken until Bannister said, "Our friends at headquarters don't seem to be making much progress toward bringing Joe Parrott in, do they?"

"And I suppose it's occurred to you that with Drugan out of the way they can't make much of a case against Parrott, anyhow? McNeal's been complaining all along that they didn't have anything against him except Drugan's story."

"Maybe they've got something more now," Bannister volunteered.

"You mean it wasn't an accident? That it was Parrott who got Drugan? Do you really think that?"

"All I said was 'maybe,'" Bannister reminded him. "Parrott's got friends, I suppose. There may have been someone who knew Drugan had been talking. He certainly didn't do much to try to keep it quiet. I don't say that's what happened but—well, it could have been something like that. McNeal's getting awfully close-mouthed lately. There's something he's figuring on that he won't tell anyone."

Whatever McNeal was figuring on he continued to keep to himself. It was because of this that on the following morning David Bannister dropped into Chief Henley's office.

The chief was busy but his secretary said Bannister might see him in half an hour or so. Bannister waited and presently was ushered into the private office.

"Good morning, Chief," he greeted from the threshold.

"Why, David! So you're still with us. Come in, won't you?"

They were old friends. Police Chief Henley had held that post for 12 years. Of medium height, slightly rotund, his clear, fresh color belied the snow white hair.

Less active now than formerly, he was generally credited with giving Tremont an honest, thorough-going police department.

"Come in and sit down," he invited. "What's on your mind this morning?"

Bannister dropped into a chair. "It's this murder," he said. "I mean Tracy King. And now this other—er, accident. They look bad, Chief. When are we going to get something definite on them? I mean some action?"

"We're doing all we can," Henley told him. "I know that. But I'd like to talk to you about your own personal theories about the crime."

"For publication?" The chief glanced at him warily from the corner of his eye.

"No, of course not."

CHIEF HENLEY turned more comfortably in his chair, lifted one knee over the other, and leaned back. "Well," he said, "I don't think it's such a difficult case. We've handled harder ones. Our main problem is to get that girl to talk."

"You mean Juliet Franco?"

"Yes—if that's her name. You never can tell about those things. It may be a name she picked up in a book. We've had her here for three days now and I've never seen such a stubborn creature!"

Bannister leaned forward. "Do you really think she shot King?" he asked.

The police chief laced his fingers together. "I'm not saying that," he said, "but I'm certain she's the key to the whole affair. Maybe someone else—a man—did the actual shooting, but I'm not convinced of that. What I financing out of its Treasury thousands of dollars, municipal and county projects, the belief is growing here that the central government should collect the taxes.

Morning worship at 10:30.

Young people's meeting at 7:00.

When one is conscious of salvation from sin through Jesus Christ, the spirit of God bears witness in his heart that he is a child of God. He receives comfort, strength, guidance, courage, when he prays sincerely. Sin in all its forms is hateful to the true Christian. He has an earnest love for the sinner and desires his salvation from sin. The Christian has a real love for all fellow Christians and rejoices with them in the progress of judgement, righteousness and of justice. The true Christian endeavors to live, by the help of God a consistent life. Jesus said to His disciples would they be known by their fruits. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Christian like deeds come from a Christian life.

At the parsonage of the Lutheran church in Ashton Wednesday afternoon occurred a wedding of much interest to people in this community when Miss Aletta Eich became the bride of LeRoy Coffman of Chana. Rev. F. W. Henke pastor of St. John's Lutheran church read the impressive ceremony. The bride, who was attended by her twin sister, Miss Leona Eich, wore a dress of cypress green with accessories to match, and the bridegroom, attended by Clarence Pumphrey of Chana, wore a suit of dark blue.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Eich, west of this place on the Lincoln highway. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coffman of Chana. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, where they were greeted by relatives and close associates.

They will reside at the home of her sister, Mrs. Dan Daegner, near Nachusa, and will farm her land. Hearty best wishes are being extended to this young couple.

Obituary

Mrs. H. G. Royer, nee Hazel B. Hartzell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hartzell, of northwest of Franklin Grove, died Saturday at Winnetka in which city she was receiving treatment for a nervous breakdown at a sanitarium. The death was a sudden shock and a grief to all of her friends in this community as well as the aged parents.

She was born northwest of Franklin Grove in October, 1888. She was a student and a graduate of the local high school, being class president in the year 1907.

She taught school in her home district about three years, then taught six years at the Buck school north of here, which is now known as Pineview. In January, 1917 she was united in marriage to H. R. Royer of Dallas Center, Iowa and the couple went to Chicago and then to Oak Park where they lived eight years. Two daughters, Esther, 15, and Janet, 9, were born to them and with the husband and parents survive. She proved to be a wife of admirable traits and a mother who deserved highly all the praises she could be tendered, and as a daughter she was the real jewel of her parents, they having buried their two sons.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in Oak Park with interment in Forest Park cemetery near that city.

Buried Here

The body of Oefene Fox, widow of the late Henry Fox, formerly of this place was brought here for burial Tuesday morning from Chicago. The deceased had been traveling in New Mexico and California, becoming ill, and was then brought back to Chicago. She passed away at a sanitarium, at the age of 68 years.

A nephew of the deceased, Alfred Sjogren, and his wife of Chicago, accompanied the remains and were the guests at the J. H. Lincoln home during their stay in this place.

Rev. O. D. Buck of the Church of the Brethren conducted the services at the grave.

Klio Club

The Klio Club held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Earl Fish Tuesday afternoon. Roll call, "Bird Tales" was very interesting. The study of the hour was "Birds." Mrs. Medrick Hussey was the leader and proved herself to be very well informed concerning birds. After the study a social hour followed during which lovely refreshments were served.
